My Dear Fellow Scout

Wear your Badges with Pride, you deserve them.

Scouting is all about good, clean, FUN, and learning can be FUN if you do it the SCOUT'S WAY.

Each badge you earn is something more you have learnt about the subject, the skill, and about yourself.

SCOUTING is one of the very best ways that any young person can look at the world around them, and know that not only can they make the best of it, but that they can achieve whatever they set their heart on.

So GO TO IT

If it moves, track it.

If it stays still, tie a knot in it.

If its another SCOUT,

SALUTE IT,

..... and lend a hand.

Yours Fraternally

The D.C

THE BADGES THEMSELVES

Your first badge is given to you when you have passed the test or demonstration as set by the Examiner.

This is a 'stick on' patch that can go on your uniform.

You may wish to trade up to a 25mm Button Badge, which will cost you a nominal sum.

Should enough Scouts wish it, we can get cloth patches made, but these will cost a few pounds.

BADGE AWARDS

There are many useful and varied things a Scout can do to broaden their experience of being a 'Good Scout'. Some of these can earn badges (or patches) to adorn their uniform, by taking part in the 'Badge Activities' that make up an important part of the regular meetings.

A BADGE SHOWS THAT A SCOUT HAS ACHIEVED PROFICIENCY IN THAT SUBJECT, EITHER BY APPLICATION OR STUDY.

After having an examination, or demonstration, on the subject, the scout has his achievement card endorsed by the examiner. This is then ratified by a staff officer who is empowered to re-examine the scout to ascertain his/her/its prowess in the subject in question, and the relevant token of achievement is issued.

If the Staff Officer suspects that some pecuniary advantage has been given by the Scout concerned to the examiner, then that proficiency badge will be revoked, unless the badge in question was one for 'Commercial Competence' in which case such a bribe is part of the examination in the first place.

Badges are to be worn wherever possible on the right arm of the uniform, however where there is no uniform covering the upper body of the Scout, then they can be worn on a sash, girdle, or tattoo.
